

A Method and System for Creating and Using Modifiable Print Files

ABSTRACT

A method of printing printed content includes creating one or more print files defining the printed content such that the print files adhere to a pre-defined format. The method also includes using the print files to render the printed content to a print device. The pre-defined format is configured to allow the print files to be modified after the print files have been initially created.